

Bodega before remediation

www.mission-texas.com

One of many stillborn babies

Bodega after remediation

In 2001, the United Nations outlawed 12 of the “most hazardous toxins known to man,” which came to be known as the “Dirty Dozen.” Mission, Texas produced 8 of those 12 and many others for decades. The contamination in Mission had been documented and researched since the 50s, however the community was not informed about it until 40 years later. The former employees and neighboring community suffer from abnormal health problems.

I urge you to take action in support of the people of Mission, Texas. Please visit the Mission, Texas Case website at www.mission-texas.com for more information.

Signature

PLACE
STAMP
HERE

Pictures taken from www.mission-texas.com

MISSION TEXAS COALITION
www.mission-texas.com